ADVENTIST CHURCH

R. B. McDannell, Pastor
Sabbath School Lesson 10 for December 6, 1969.
Subject: Treasures New & Old
Memory Verse: "Then said He unto the, Therefore every scribe which is instructed unto the kingdom is like unto a man that is an householder, which bringeth forth out of histreasure things new and old. Matt. 13:52.
Study Aim: To seek to discover (1) in both new and old Testaments evidences of inspired revelations of divine truth (2) the progressive unfolding of truth and (3) the results of walking in its light.
Lesson Outline: Introduction I. The Great Storehouse of Truth. Q1. New treasures and old, Matt. 13:52. Q2. Jesus accepted Old Testament as authoritative, Matt. 4:4, 7, 10. II. Opening God's Treasure Store, Q3. With a desire for knowledge, Ps. 119:9-16. Q4. To find heavenly treasure Matt. 13:44, Q5. For spiritual insight, 1 Cor. 2:14, Q6. With the will to obey, 1 Peter 1:22, Q7. With the hope of sanctification John 17:17. III. Receiving and Imparting Truth, Q8. The truth like mustard seed and leaven, Luke 13:18-21. Q9. Eating and drinking God's truth, John 6:32-35. Q10. Receiving and imparting. John 6:5-13. IV Advancing in the light, Q11. With opening understanding, Eph, 1:15-19. Q12 In the path of the just Prov. 4: 18. Q13. Cleansing from all sin, I John 1:7.
Note – The treasure gained by the householder – he does not hoard, He brings it forth to communicate to others. And by us the treasure increases. The householder has precious things both new and old. So Christ teaches that the truth committed to His disciples is to be communicated to the world. And as the knowledge of truth is imparted it will increase. Christ's Object Lessons, Page 124.
"The great storehouse of truth is the word of God. The written word, the book of nature, and the book of experience in God's dealing with human life. Here are the treasures from which Christ's workers are to draw." Christ's Object Lessons P. 125. By the old – Christ refers to all the will of God as revealed in time past unto the fathers by the prophets (Heb. 1:1) By the new He refers to His own teachings. (Heb. 1:2). May we all be deligent students of Christ's teaching and apply His Word to our individual selves, comparing Scripture with Scripture.

Best Present In The World

Brownie Scouts from Richmond Troop 393 hang red stockings on the Christmas Tree at the Headquarters Building of the Children's Home Society in Richmond, Mrs. Louise Wood, Brownie Leader, states, " I wish everyone could have seen the enthusiasm of these Brownie Scouts as they decorated this Christmas Tree for the Children's Home Society of Virginia." These stockings have been sent to the Society along with contributions from individuals helping the Society raise the funds to provide its adoption services. The Society is still lacking $20,081.50 to meet its year end goal of $75,000. The Society which serves every community with adoption services, has mailed a pair of bright red Christmas stockings to individuals throughout the state.
One of the pair is to hand on your Christmas Tree as a reminder of a stocking that was filled with a gift of love and concern for a baby who has a special need -- parents of his very own. The other stocking of the pair is the one that is returned to the Society with a gift.
The Society's President, Mr. John Lee McElroy, Jr., said, "I hope that everyone will return the stockings promptly so that we can complete the decoration of our Tree."
The Society's mailing address is P.O. Box 11184, Richmond, Va. 23230.

1967, the number of rginia was very small.

When the 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act made federal funds available for aides their number began to increase sharply.
In the 107 Virginia school divisions with aides last year, 61 divisions paid their aides exclusively from federal funds and in 30 more systems the percentage of federal funds varied from 25 to 99 per cent. Only 16 of the 107 systems did not use any federal funds for aides.
The VEA study showed that the three most frequently assigned duties for aides were setting up audio - visual equipment and other instructional materials, helping with the classroom housekeeping and duplicating tests and other materials, other frequent duties included helping with clothing, typing, collecting money, correcting tests and checking homework and notebooks. Often aides supervised such non-class areas as bus loading and unloading stations, corridors, playgrounds and cafeterias.
At times, depending largely upon their education and the grade level involved, aides supplement classroom activities by tutoring small groups of children while the teacher worked with another group, reading or telling stories to primary school children or tutoring individual pupils.
A few specialized aides were employed to correct English themes, assist in subject presentations or plan and assist in school laboratory experiments.
Aides are most prominent in the elementary grades and kindergarten. Only one in five aides worked at the junior high school level or above.
Very few of the aides were full-time employees and one-fourth worked less than two hours a day.
Educational requirements, salary and training programs for the aides varied widely depending upon the duties to which the aide was to be assigned. There are no statewide guidelines affecting aides and the study revealed little consistency among divisions in employment practices or duty assignment.
While 87 of the 107 divisions required aides to have a high school education, 15 had no specific requirements and two required four years of college.
Salary for the most part-time employees ranged from $1.30 to $3.00 per hour or $1,260 to $5,500 per year depending upon duties and time worked. Slightly less than ten per cent of the aides – most of whom worked less than six hours per week – were unpaid volunteers.
Most systems depended upon the immediate supervisor to orient the aide but 46 divisions held preschool training institutes and 71 conducted in - service training programs for aides.

Va. Promotes Safe Driving

Richmond, Va. – The National Safety Council has informed John T. Hanna, Director of the Virginia Highway Safety Division, that Virginia now ranks fifth among the 50 states in promoting the Council's Defensive Driving Course.
This course, Hanna said, is designed to teach drivers to take every reasonable precaution to prevent traffic crashes, over and above what the law requires them to do. It consists of eight hours of classroom instruction with visual aids used freely. There is a similar 12-hour course to qualify insturctors.
The Council commended Ft. Eustis which requires all military personnel, officer and enlisted, to complete the course and is setting the stage for participation by civilian employees.
Governor Godwin has recommended that State employees undergo this training and progress is being made. Many of the local highway safety commissions have taken on the administration of the course to the general public as part of their safety promotion programs.
Through September of this year 34,878 people in Virginia completed the course.

Check Sod Before Buying

Consumers were reminded today of the importance of checking the sod they buy for proper labeling.
Dennis E. Brown, supervisor seed and sod, Division of Regulatory Services of the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Commerce said that the first person has been convicted under the 1966 statute regulating the sale of sod.
Brown pointed out that the sod was imported from out of state but still comes under Virginia law.
The Fairfax court in accepting guilty pleas on four charges of failure to label sod and one violating a stop sale order fined the company a total of $1,000 with $750 of that suspended.
"Consumers should check any sod they buy to assure their receiving the kind they need for their own uses," said Brown. "Consumers should also question any sod that is offered for sale and not labeled."
The sod law is based on the truthful labeling of the product. The law provides that each shipment be accompanied by an invoice showing the kind, or mixture, variety if known, textures as fine or coarse, origin, net measure, lot number and labeler's name and address.
Virginia is the first state to regulate sod. The cooperation of county, state and industry officials was instrumental in creating the law.

On-The-Spot

The Veterans Administration announced that its program to provide on-the-spot orientation and counseling to combat troops in Vietnam reached its millionth milestone this month at the U.S. Army's 90th Replacement Battalion at Long Binh.
The millionth serviceman to receive guidance from the VA in Vietnam was Army Sgt. Alexander Joseph Bommarito, a radio communication specialist with the First Battalion, 11th Cavalry Regiment, according to W. H. Highfill, Jr., Acting Manager of the Roanoke VA Regional Office.
Vietnam counseling is part of VA's total "Outreach" program which encourages servicemen and veterans to embark upon self-improvement programs using various VA benefits.
Since its inception in Jan. 1967, VA representatives at seven locations in Vietnam have in addition to their orientation work, provided personal interviews to more than 120,000 service men on an individual basis in Vietnam.
Bommarito plans many state side contacts with the VA. The first took place when he reported to VA's regional office in Detroit last week for his Certificate of Eligibility to continue his education under the GI Bill.
